Portsmouth Staffing Firm Hires Senior Staff; Expands Staffing Services

PORTSMOUTH, N.H., January 4, 2007—Staff Hunters, a leading staffing agency and placement firm specializing in finance and administrative personnel today announced that it has opened a new office in Bedford, NH to provide leading edge companies with financial and administrative staff. The new office will be headed by staffing veteran Van L. Laventure.

With over thirty years of experience in the staffing industry, Staff Hunter's new location is well suited to serve businesses in the Merrimack Valley and Northern Massachusetts. "The continued expansion of our business makes the opening of our Bedford office a natural progression of our growth," says Tony Manfredi, Staff Hunter's president. "New Hampshire's strong economy and growth, provide a strong need for the personnel that Staff Hunters can provide to it's clients."

A number of companies have been moving to the Bedford area to take advantage of the state's favorable tax climate, the area's population of educated professionals, proximity to Boston, and access to other companies in the area. And the influx of new revenue is invaluable to the healthy economic future of New Hampshire.

Celebrating its three year anniversary, Staff Hunters growth is being supported by the addition of a number of senior staff. "As organizations grow, staffing both on a short and long-term basis becomes of critical importance. Finding the right people for a position can make a real difference in how a company performs over time," said Manfredi.
